TOGETHERNESS UNITES US -

Isolation leads to loneliness
And loneliness to despair.
Separation leads to disharmony
And then to mindless war.
But in oneness, there is hope.
Through Unity
We gain strength as individuals.
Only in being together
Can we possibly get it together...
We are better together.

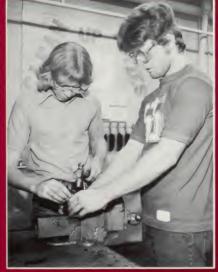

SHO SA MIOL SW

If we lose our concept of togetherness,
And go our way on divided paths,
Our school will not function until
As both groups and individuals we join forces.
Opportunities abound for us to grow
In our social and intellectual beings.
We can only fail by not being aware,
And seeing in each other a means of direction.
Whatever our endeavors, be they great or small,
Together Crown Point High will win over all.
And in getting it together, we can be sure that . . .
We Are Better Together

WE'RE BETTER TOGETHER =

We've been apart
In so many ways
And for so long,
A struggling student without a goal,
A disconnected school community.
It's time to fuse our spirits now,
Time to reestablish and locate ourselves
By taking refuge in
And searching for each other.
And we can always feel secure
In knowing that . . .

We are Better Together.

Homecoming traditions carry on

This year's Homecoming made way for many changes, but it also followed many traditions.

One tradition was the Homecoming queen and her court. Prior to Homecoming, the four classes nominated girls as their princesses and queen. During the week, class princesses were announced. They were Freshman Julie Haag, Sophomore Nancy Werblo, and Junior Lori Holguin. The seniors nominated Celeste Elstrom, Kelly Glivar, Mary Georgas, and Carol Niepokol for queen.

On Friday night, during the halftime of the football game, Carol Niepokoj was crowned Homecoming queen by Kathy Fox and Sam Vagenas.

A few of the changes were caused by the shortened lunch hours. This lead to the cancellation of the teacher's burger bash and the rescheduling of class competition. The competition was held at the second annual Fall Festival, where the Seniors once again proved to be the most spirited class by winning every event except the tricycle race.

The twelfth annual powderpuff game was held on Thursday night. The game was almost canceled because of a lack of coaches, but because of the efforts of Carol Niepokoj and Margaret Forsythe, the game went on as scheduled. The seniors emerged victorious with a score of 30-18. Sophomore Jenny Larson scored all four senior touchdowns for an unofficial record.

The parade on Friday night stepped off at six o'clock, starting a chain of events. The Latin Club's catapult won best float in club competition, while the sophomores won in class competition.

The Bulldogs soundly defeated the Griffith Panthers with a score of 32-11. Dave Gervais and Randy Hulen each scored two touchdowns, while Dan Doty ran for another

Mistletoe magic transforms cafe

The 1979 Christmas dance "Mistletoe Magic," sponsored by the Inklings, had a familiar Christmas theme. This year, however, the old was joined by the new. The cafeteria was transformed by the beautiful real Christmas trees giving it a true Christmas effect. Yet while decorations were traditional.

the dress was modern. Short dresses, and jumpsuits were the prevalent styles. During the ever popular disco dancing, many couples enjoyed watching the skillful, meanwhile, the traditional slow dance filled the floor.

As in the past the class princesses were chosen by random drawing. Princesses were: Senior Jood Lambert, Jumlor, Chris Thoman; Sophomore, Sandy Harris, and Freshman Julie Haag. Escorts were John Billan. Pat Malony. Todd. Harris, and Freshman Julie Haag, Escons were John Biljan, Pat Malony, Todd Andersen, and Tom Feder respectively. The band "Fluid Motion" helped provide the 225 couples who attended with a night full of music and magic to remembers.

Teachers' strike delays school

The new decade brought many new and exciting things into the Lake County area.

The 1979-1980 school year in the Crown Point community got a slow start due to a teachers' strike. A settlement was reached after a two and a hall week delay and both teachers and students returned to the classroom.

After the strike was over, Timothy Ball School on Summit Street was opened and the Douglas MacArthur School addition was completed.

The old Lake County Courthouse, the subject of controversy for many years, was finally completely renovated. The Courthouse was sandblasted and thermopane windows installed. Money for the project was obtained by a matching grant from the U.S. Department of Interior. The Department of Interior gave the Courthouse Foundation $7500 with the understanding that the Foundation did this by laking out loans at Crown Point Banks.

Elections were held this year for city offices. Mayor Collins was unopposed in his race for the mayoral office, extending his term in office to 16 years.

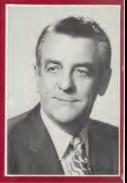

The building of McDonald's Restaurant, completed in August of 1979, added to the congestion of Main Street traffic, but also the restaurant became a haven for students. Even with the abbreviated half-hour lunch time, students could drop into McDonald's for a bite to eat. McDonald's also served as an employer for many high school students.

The highlight of the year was the opening of the Holiday Star Theater in Merrillville. The Holiday Star, an annex to the Holiday Inn, was completed around the Christmas of 1979. Not only did the theater bring big star enterlainment to the area, but it also meant that people of the area did not have to drive to Chicago to see great shows.

Among the entertainment many students saw during Holiday Star's first year were The Oak Ridge Boys, Donna Summer, Rufus and Chaka Khan, Chuck Mangione, and Kenny Rogers.

The winter of '79-'80 was extremely mild. For the first time in many years, students were not kept out of school for a great length of time. Morning after morning, students waited in vain for the magical words, "Crown Point Community Schools will be closed today."

One blizzard roared through causing school dismissal at mid-day. The treacherous ride home offered small comfort to teachers and students longing for a snow day.

NATIONAL NEWS

Iranian crisis threatens world

This year the nation faced the reality of threats to worldwide peace and a Pope who traveled internationally to promote that peace.

This year's most outstanding issue was the Crisis in Iran, centering around the takeover of the American Embassy in Tehran. Iranian militants, spurred on by the religious leader Ayatollah Khomeini, seized over 50 American hostages, holding them to force return of the deposed Shah to Iran for trial.

A further threat to international peace occurred with Russian invasion of Afghanistan. President Carter met the Soviet's military moves, a direct concern to the U.S. security, with the proposed boycott of the Summer Moscow Olympics and a Soviet grain embargo.

For a week in October, political tensions ceased with Pope John Paul II's wisit to America. National coverage was given as the Pope made stops in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Des Moitees, Chicago, and Washiriqton, D.C. The Pope, in his plea for human rights, also toured Ireland, Mexico, Turkey, and his native Poland.

The 1980 Winter Olympics, held in Lake Placid, New York, saw Americans "Go for the Gold" six times. Highlighting the games were Eric Heiden's unprecedented five gold medals in speedskating and the U.S. hockey team's stunning upset of the Soviet Union and capturing of the gold medal. Economic issues were also significant with energy leading the way. Casoline topped $1 a gallon and continued to rise as OPEC nations hiked prices. Proposed alternatives to this problem were gasohol, rationing, increasing domestic supplies, and conservation.

The gold market also received attention with gold soaring to over $800 an ounce.

The 1980 presidential election began with the New Hampshire primary in early spring. The American public had a variety of viewpoints to choose from, ranging from Reagan's conservatism to Kenne-dy's liberalism. Bush and Anderson gave the Republicans an alternative to Reagan while Senator Kennedy challenged the incumbent Carter on the Democratic ticket.

Inflation also sky-rocketed. Inflation reached over 18 percent this year, the highest in the nation's history.

America also suffered two tragic losses, the death of two beloved Americans, Jimmie Durante, comedian, pianist, and singer, died early in 1980. John Wayne affectionately known as "The Duke" died in June of 1979 after a bout with cancer. John Wayne is best known tor his many westerns and charity work.

The Iranian Crisis and the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan brought the American people closer together and inspired a new surge of patriotism.

Changes abound for CP students

Changes abounded within the framework of Crown Point High School during the 1979-80 school year. Many longstanding traditions and rules were modified due to policy changes by the members of the administration.

The change most affecting the student body and faculty was the shortening of lunch hours to half an hour. This procedure was brought about because of complaints by town merchants of loitering and vandalism by students. Lunch periods were divided into three half-hour sessions labeled "A-B-C." A student's time for lunch was determined by the schedule of his fourth hour class.

Developments brought about by this change included shorter lunch lines and the elimination of intramural activities in the gym.

The nicest change for students was the dismissal of school at 2:35 instead of 3 p.m. This meant extra time for athletes to prepare for meets and working students to relax before heading off to their jobs.

Other changes included the fence that was circumscribed around the school as a deterrent to late night vandals. For those not wanting a hot meal, a salad bar was installed in the cafeteria. To comply with President Carter's energy conservation plan, thermostats were lowered.

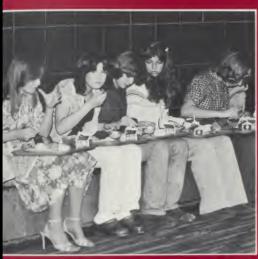

Despite the above differences in school policy, students, teachers, and administration adjusted easily. By next year, these changes will be taken for granted.

A new addition (opposite page top right) is the fence around the school, which was put up for security reasons.

The 'C' lunch lines (opposite page below) are still long even after part of the thirty minutes have past.

Even though the lunch periods were broken into three sections, (left) students sometimes had problems finding tables.

FASHION =

Shoes (top) are a big asset to a woman's wardrobe some of the most popular are the Candy's line, restern cowboy boots, and the ankle strapped, losed toe, dress shoes.

Many girts this year chose western fashions. Wearing one of those styles is Nancy Smith. (middle eff) She found the blue jean skirt, together with a plaid cotton shirt to be quite a comfortable casual putifit for school.

Abbie McLeod (middle right) wears the business woman's apparel, the classic suit. Instead of a vest, these suits featured shawl, lapel, and collared blazer worn belted with mandarin collared blouse.

Forties' styles flourish anew

The look this year went back to the ever famous 40's, the era when men and women began to take notice of a fine streamline fit. This year some students at CPHS found that perfect fit and became very style conscious.

"Straight Lege" and "Baggies" are the news fads in jeans. Worn by both sexes, these jeans have taken a turn for comfort. The "Baggies," a new form of painter's pants, have a straight leg appearance with extra material in hips and thighs to compensate for added tucks and side-seamed pockets. The "Straight legs" are just that and are worn on slim figures, tucked into boots for a western look.

Blazers and sweaters took on an added touch this year. Instead of lying flat and shaping to shoulders, the shoulder pad was sewn in to make shoulders look wider and take on a square shape.

The newest of the sweaters is the "Poodle Sweater" designed to keep body heat in with gigantic sleeves, cowlneck, and an over-sized bodice.

Women's knees and thighs showed up everywhere this year. Stits in skirts became popular and were comfortable for those who wore them. Tight skirts with slits showed up in combinations of back and front likic pleats as well as slits on one or both sides of the skirts. Blue jean skirts were also a tashionable item of the teenager's casual attire.

Teaming up with the dress pants and skirts were delicate blouses to fit the classic style. Made from chiffons, satins, and crepe de chines, blouses featured tucks and ruffles with intricate designs and lace. The delicate fabrics and soft design made the wearer feel as feminine as a flower.

Some guys became as fashion conscious as the gals. Feeling the need for a cleaner cut, the guys began wearing dress pants with tucks, pockets and shirts with mandarin collars. On occasion guys wore a shirt, tie, and blazer. To combat the 65° school classroom temperatures, guys wore sweaters and velour tops.

Fashion fads reminiscent of the forties flourished throughout the year.

Seventh January graduation held

The seventh annual mid-term commencement was held January 22, 1980 in the High School auditorium.

The 89 graduates marched into the auditorium to the traditional march "Pomp and Circumstance," played by the Chamber Orchestra under the direction of Mr, James Deal.

To begin the ceremony, Senior Beth Voyak gave the invocation. Then senior class president, Dave Gervais, presented the class welcome.

Rev. John Starr, minister of the First Christian Church of Crown Point, gave the Baccalaureate message.

Judge Darlene Mears of the Juvenile Division of the Superior Court of Lake County, delivered the commencement address "The Givers Vs. The Takers."

Mr. Paul Georgas, principal of Crown Point High School, presented the class of 1980.

After the graduates had received their diplomas from school board members Mr. Byron Hubbard and Mr. Lesile Milby, Dr. Phillip McDaniel, superintendent of the Crown Point Community Schools, pronounced the class of 1980 oraduated.

To conclude the ceremony, senior Kathy Louviere gave the benediction. As the January graduates left the auditorium, "March of the Graduates" by Mêrle J. Issacs was played.

Prom '80 returns to Serbian Hall with ''All of My Love'' theme

Prom 1980 was an event that will not only serve as a lasting remembrance for seniors attending their final high school dance, but for everyone involved.

Following tradifion, the junior class organized the many different aspects that make the Prom something special. Plans started in January with the selection of the St. Elijah Serbian Hall as the dance site. Next, the band "Passage" was chosen to provide couples with dancing entertainment. Then, several themes were brought up and the final decision was reached by a class vote with Led Zeppelin's hit song "All of My Love" becoming the 1980 Prom theme.

As the weeks drew nearer, that "someone special" was asked to attend. The enjoyable task of finding a new dress was begun for the girls while the guys waited to rent matching tuxes. With the weeks turning to days, flowers were ordered and the excitement set in.

Approximately 100 couples arrived on the night of April 25 and friends informally gathered at tables. After Geoff Slaughter gave the Welcome and Benediction, dinner was served. Eventually, the tables were moved and the decorated dance floor was made ready. The group "Passage" then began their music. Throughout the evening, couples took time out so Root Photographers could give them a lasting memory in pictures.

As the evening progressed, dancing was stopped for the introduction of the Prom King and Queen candidates. The envelope was opened and Queen Barb Clark and King Mark McQuen were crowned. They were joined by Joyce Ecrement, Celeste Elfstrom, and Cara Maloney in the Queen's Court; Brian Graden, Charlie Mangan, and Dan Plesac in the King's Court; and the rest of the couples in the theme song dance.

For the seniors, Prom 1980 was a successful conclusion to their "dance life" at Crown Point High School.

Commencement held indoors

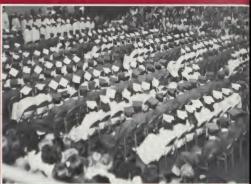

Crown Point High School's 98th Commencement exercise saw 411 seniors receive their diplomas on May 23 in the gymnasium. The ceremony, originally scheduled to take place on the football field, was moved inside at the last minute due to inclement weather.

The valedictorian and salutatorian delivered the following messages: Pledge of Allegiance, John McMichael; Invocation, Margaret Forsythe; Class Welcome, Dave Gervais; Valedictory Message, Janette Smock and Donna Kosica; and the Benediction, Jim Burrell.

The symphony band provided the marching music and other selections, while the senior choir members also performed.

The Baccalaureate Message, entitled "Fresher-Power-Progress," was given by Rev. Gene Clark of the Church of the Nazarene.

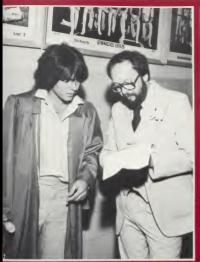

After Principal Paul Georgas made the class presentation, Assistant Principal Ken Brist read the names of the graduates who proceeded across the stage and received their diplomas from Super-intendent Phillip McDaniel, who formally graduated the clas of 1980; School Board Vice-President, Gerald Keddington; and Principal Paul Georgas.

ACTIVITIES

As a student body, we unite
In councils, clubs, and cheering squads.
Bands and choirs entertain us;
Publications inform us.
But our success still depends
On all our groups becoming one.
As separate entities we can only exist,
But togetherness will see us flourish.
And as we prosper in these activities,
Our need for unity becomes more apparent,
We will always see that . . .

Council sparks group functions

The Student Council started the year by sponsoring booths for the Fall Festival. The pie-in-the-face booth was where students threw pies at willing teachers. At the Disco Demolition, students brought their disco records to demolish against a wall. At the car bash, teachers as well as students were able to release their frustrations by harmering on a wrecked station wagon with a sledge harmer.

To show patriotism and to honor the American hostages held in Iran, the Pledge of Allegiance was said each Monday morning after the announcements.

Classics "80" was a project that the Student Council co-sponsored with the choral department. They participated by helping with the organization and advertising over the public address system.

The first week of May signified the first annual "Wellness Week" at Crown Point. Mr. Dennis Garmaut, a 69 alumnus of Crown Point High School and a superstar basketball player, came to address the student body in an assembly. Mr. Gamauf told the students that a person should be accepted as an individual, not as just a part of the crowd. As part of the Wellness Week agenda, the Student Council helped clean up the school yard and aided voters on primary election day.

NHS becomes active chapter

National Honor Society made several changes this year. First, Mrs. Delene Keddington became the sponsor. Secondly, the members voted to become an active instead of an honorary chapter.

NHS immediately put this plan into action by holding Danceathon '79, a continuous twenty hour dance marathon to replenish the David Gergely Memorial Fund.

Other activities of the society included baking bread and registering voters.

Every year students are chosen to participate in Boy's and Girl's State. At state, students learn how the Indiana State Government works. Participants stay one week and live in dorms that are made into cities, countries, and precincts. They also elect officers to hold special positions.

Five students achieved the coveted role of valedictorians for the 1979-80 school year. These seniors were Jim Burrell, Margaret Forsythe, Donna Kosica, John McMichael, and Janette Smock. David Gervais was this year's salutatorian.

A new look for Windfall

Windfall, the literary-art magazine underwent a number of dramatic changes under its new adviser. Mr. Eric Witherspoon. The size of the magazine was cut in half, the number of pages was increased and the cost of each copy was doubled.

Before the beginning of the school year an almost entirely new staff was chosen through faculty recommendations of outstanding students and personal interviews to determine students talents and interests. In addition, many new positions were changed in order to fit outlined tasks accurately.

The emphasis this year was on making the magazine as professional looking as possible. To accomplish this, layout was simplified, all copy was typeset, and photography and artwork were shot in half-tones. To save on printing costs, the staff did all of its own layout and its own reducing and enlarging of photos and photographed artwork.

To interest students in contributing to and buying the magazine, a $100 prize was offered to the student whose contribution was published and was voted best by persons who bought a copy of the magazine. Also, an extensive campaign was launched to increase student awareness.

To be impartial in selecting material, the names of all contributors were "screened," or removed, before circulating contributions among the editorial board. It was the job of the editorial board to communicate with contributors by offering constructive criticism and to make the decision, along with the editors, on the material that was to be published in the magazine.

Editorial Board heads paper

Though off to a sluggish start the Inklings began to publish newspapers with regularity.

The staff met over the summer, a few months into the year, to have a paper ready for the first day of school. Due to the teacher's strike, the first issue sat unread for two weeks. This also disrupted the schedule of subsequent issues.

Like the previous year the Inklings consisted of eight pages, featuring three pages of news and features, an in-depth spread, two pages of sports, and an opinion page.

Unlike last year, Inklings was headed by an editorial board of four members instead of a single editor. This gave each editor the chance to become better acquainted with his responsibilities and to have more flexibility in meeting his deadlines.

One of the many problems that plagued the new editors was funds. With increasing printing costs and declining sales, the staff had trouble making ends meet.

After a few issues, the young staff gained expertise and continued to meet the demands of a bi-weekly deadline.

Besides putting out a bi-weekly paper, the Inklings staff sponsored its annual Turnabout Dance. The dance, Mistle Toe Magic, was held on December 15, 1979, and attracted 250 couples who danced to the music provided by Fluid Motion.

The Inklings sold carnations for Valentine's Day and took part in the Publications Banquet held in April.

Staff puts it all together

Deadlines, schedules, copy, graphics, and headlines are just a few of the many ingredients that go into a yearbook. Every year the staff produces a yearbook containing the memories of the past year. What most people don't realize is the amount of work involved to produce this picture-tilled annual. To sum up a full year of activities in 200 pages takes patience, imagination, and ingenuity.

This year was no different. Members of the 1980 EXCALIBUR staff found themselves up against numerous decisions, new deadlines, and unplanned schedule setbacks. Despite the difficulties, the staff was able to represent 1980 with its joys, excitement, sadness, and togetherness.

The ingredients were available, the staff willing, and the happenings unique and memorable.

Active Latin, Speech clubs travel, debate, celebrate

Speech and Debate Club is made up of seventeen students. The students travel to area schools to compete in meets. The kinds of speeches are impromptu, broadcasting, duet acting, original oratory, and dramatic interpretation. The season for Speech and Debate Club is from October through March. The team has a total of fifteen meets a year. Sectionals were held at Munster High School, March 1. In Sectionals, the four students who placed were Eric Berman, second; Sam Vagenas, sixth; Doug Jokerst and Teddie Joyce tied for seventh. The only person to go on to Regionals was Eric Berman. who placed as alternate state.

The Latin Club is comprised of interested Latin students. The club conducts monthly meetings to discuss current events

This year's Latin Club began the school year with a hay ride in October. The club also took a trip to Chicago Art Institute and visited various Greek restaurable.

The Latin Club took first prize with its Homecoming float.

The Latin Club backed the "car bash" at the Student Council Fall Festival.

In December the annual Latin Banquet, the Saturnalia took place. Seniors with two years Latin received certificates, those with three years received a laurel wreath, and those with four years received roses.

Twenty students further enriched their knowledge by visiting historic sites and viewing Italian lifestyles. The tour schedule covered many different parts of Italy including familiar places such as Milan, Verona, Venice, Florence, Pisa, Assisi, Rome, Pompeii, Naples, and finally Sorrento where the tour concluded.

Ski club hits slopes in Utah

This year the Ski Club journeyed to Park City, Utah for spring break. Club members helped raise money for this trip, as well as the other trips, by selling candy bars and M & M's. They also had a bake sale and a few car washes.

Meetings were held every week before school in the auditorium to brief members on the time, place, cost and other details of upcoming trips.

Beginners were able to practice their first sking techniques on the wide, open hillsides, while those who were more advanced showed their skill on steeper slopes. The Ski Club visited Wilmont Mountain, Alpine Valley, and Crystal Mountain in Wisconsin; Boyne Mountain in Michigan; Park City, Utah; and the Pines in Valparaiso, Indiana

Clubs promote thinking, caring

Madhouse, Bulldog and Take are just a few of the variations used in playing chess. These methods were put in use frequently by the members of the 1980 Chess Cibb. Meeting weekly from two to three hours at a time, club members made an attempt to improve skills and techniques. A Round-Robin type tournament took place within the club during the year. A ladder was constructed placing those members with the highest number of points on the top rung. However, allolav and no work were not the case.

The club officers met in a attempt to construct a constitution. Although their hearts were in it, their minds were concentrating on chess. As a result, the attempt at writing a constitution failed.

Keeping active by helping others was the main purpose of the 1980 Women of Tomorrow Club.

During the year, the members donated girl-filled Christmas stockings to an orphanage in Gary. Also, the girls displayed the holiday spirit during the Easter sason. The club visited the Maple Manor Nursing Home and spend time chatting with the residents and distributing paper flowers they had made. The club provided all the funds needed for their activities by selling Christmas ornaments and, later in the year, selling assorted candies.

Choirs have a successful year

Members of the A Cappella and Show Choirs are chosen by audition. Both of these choirs stress the understanding of the emotional power of music and the ability to communicate through song. Among the activities of the A Cappella Choir are participation in four concerts as well as the Lake County Choral Festival. These choirs sang for the City Ceremonica on Veteran's Day and Memorial Day. They collaborated with the orchestra in recording a Christmas Album which sold for $6.50.

The Show Choir, a select choir of 18 voices, is an extracurricular activity group. Show Choir earned a superior rating at NISBOVA. They sang at the CPHS Jazz Festival in March and are in constant demand for banquets, school, and civic functions throughout the year. Both the A Cappella and Show Choirs are an important part of CPHS and the community.

Choirs capture NISBOVA gold

The Chorateers and Choralaires, or boy's and girl's choir, started their seasons with the fall concert and ended it with the spring concert, with still another concert at Christmas. They entered many soloists and barber shop quartets at NIS-BOVA and won many gold and silver medals.

The girl's choir sent three ensembles and the boy's choir sent a large men's ensemble, which scored a nine, or a first. The boys later went to state, where they scored an even better eight, claiming still another first.

These two groups combined classical music with newer, bouncier tunes, adding music to another chapter of CPHS history.

Madrigals honor age-old customs

In early fall sixteen members of the choir were chosen by audition to become members of the Madrigal Singers. The Madrigals recreate a sixteenth century atmosphere by holding traditional Elizabethan dinners at the beginning of the Christmas season. The dinners, held at the First Christian Church for the past seven years, were moved to the Great Escape Balforom this year to give the dinners a unique setting. Although the large chandelier in the center of the room wasn't exactly the right century, its light caught the glimmer of the Renaissance costumes made of silks, velvets, satins, and heavy tapestry. These costumes were made to litt lightly around the bodice with long flowing skirts held out by a crinoline made of animal bone or heavily starched material.

Besides the authenticity of the costumes, the pageantry of the testive Elizabethan meal is quite a sight. The "boar's head" is brought out on a tray on the shoulders of two lackeys (servants). The head is adorned with lettuce, apples, pineapples, and cherries. The dessert, "liggy pudding" is brought out in the same manner, but it is set aflame to create a dramatic effect.

Those involved in 'Mads' this year saw the effect of seven years of hard work by other gifted students before them, and they took if upon themselves to finish another year of even greater achievements. Among these achievements were the participation in the production of a Christmas Album, and singing before V.I.P.'s at the opening of the Holiday Star Theatre.

Drama displays student talents

Stagecraft, Drama and Thespian Society all center around one common interest, drama. Although the clubs share a common interest, they are all unique in their own way.

Stagecraft is offered to give students interested in drama a chance to participate in what goes into the production other than or including the actual acting. Lighting, sets, props. scenery, costumes and make-up are all essential in planning a production. This year Stagecraft outlined and produced the backgrounds and special effects for "Classics 1980."

Drama Club's purpose is to give the drama department financial backing Costumes, sets, and props for plays and musicals are costly. The Drama Club is responsible for funding the production and if necessary taking a loan from the choir department. The Drama Club meets monthly to discuss financial status.

The Thespian Society is made up of students who have achieved a level of recognition in drama. A point system is used to issue points to individuals participating in plays and musicals. The points are given for acting and or helping with the other details of production. The Thespian Society is the highest recognition an individual can achieve in drama.

Comedies staged by Drama Club

The Crown Point Drama Company produced two plays this year. The first play, "Heaven Can Wait." opened in November.

A comedy-fantasy, "Heaven Can Wait," by Harry Segal, is based on one man's love for a woman and his powerful will to live.

Under the supervision of Mr. Roger Hughes the rehearsals went smoothly, and opening night was a success. Although the cast was composed of students familiar with acting and those with little or no acting experience, everything went well.

"Tom Jones" opened in May under the direction of Mr. Marion Kellum and Mr. John Hooseline. "Tom Jones" ran for four performances. Audience participation and response boosted the actors' enthusiasm, and the show was a success.

"Tom Jones," a hilarious comedy is based on a mismatched love affair. Despite confusion and undecidedness, the play ends with the marriage of this couple.

Musical opens on time

Auditions for this year's musical "Once Upon a Mattress" began in early Janu-ary, Although many people had tried out for various parts, the cast was finally chosen. The cast spent at least three hours rehearsing everyday after school, organizing the play that was to open in March.

The musical came to a standstill when Mr. Roger Hughes, one of the directors, resigned. With the resignation of Mr. Hughes, Mr. John Hooseline and Mr. Marion Kellum stepped in to help Mr. Michael Wade, and the musical continued as scheduled. Mr. Wade spent time with the cast in order to achieve the most perfect note. Mr. Kellum handled the technical end, making sure that the lighting was accurate as well as the sound. Mr. Hooseline coached the cast in acting, proper movements, gestures and various other things.

The sets were fairly easy to build because they were huge blocks arranged in various ways.

With the help of the directors, the musical opened as scheduled.

The band was a busy bunch this year. They attended band camp at Salesian Prep in the summer. The students had to put out 100 percent, twelve hours a day for a week to learn new field shows.

in late September the band traveled to Kokomo, Indiana for a contest in which they placed third. Early in October they visited Fort Wayne for the NISBOVA contest. A first place there entitled them to perform on the state level. This would be the first group to do so since 1975. At the state contest at Terre Haute, the band earned a ranking of eighteenth.

The band raised money to cover their travel expenses and new uniforms by a cake walk on the square, their annual fruit drive, a paper drive, and a car wash.

Musical groups improve skills

Most students participating in Symphony and Concert Band have a history of music dating back to the fourth grade. At this time students received a brief introduction to music theory and took a test of music skills. Instruction in playing various instruments was offered to those students showing interest and those with exceptional test scores.

Upon entering high school, students, enrolled in band, audition. Those with exceptional talent are placed in Symphony Band. The Concert Band is usually composed of younger students or those with less experience with their instrument.

Both bands allow students to compete for the order of chairs, placing the best musician first, with the others following in respective order.

This season marked the second year of the Crown Point High School Orchestra. It also marked the beginning of a musical group entitled "Sinfonietta" composed of a select group of orchestra and band students. The group performed for numerous Crown Point organizations.

The orchestra received many top honors this year. One outstanding honor was an invitation to attend Ball State University Orchestra Festival. Crown Point was one of three Indiana orchestras to be invited.

Great emphasis was placed on fund raising such as paper and bottle drives as well as the annual fruit sale. As a result of the money raised, new uniforms were purchased to complete the orchestra's new look.

Winter Guard marches to 3rd in competition

The Winter Guard, an organization of sixteen girls, included six rifles and ten

This year the method for trying out was changed. The girls were given a piece of music and they had to write their own routine to it. They were judged on creativity and execution.

The Winter Guard practiced for two hours twice each week. They performed during half-time at both Taft Junior High and CPHS basketball games. Winter Guard participated in two competitions, one in Alexandria, Indiana, and the other in Ossian, Indiana, where they received ninth and third, respectively.

Their music included Dramatic Prelude, To Life, and Chuck Mangione's Bellavia.

Their sponsor, Mr. Michael Winslow, wrote the drills, while the captains wrote the equipment work.

There were only three seniors, Nancy Smith, Aissa Margiotta, and Kate McCord in the group this year. The rest of the girls are looking forward to another great marching season next fall.

Art Club lends helping hand

Lending a helping hand might well be he motto of the CPHS Art Club.

"Home of the Bulldogs" posters displayed throughout the school represent one such "helping hand" project sponsored by Miss Sharon Ervin and the Art Club this year

Throughout the year this ferociouslooking Bulldog promotes spirit in passers-by and encourages support of the school's athletic teams

Another "helping hand" project was the designing of T-shirts for the band.

In addition, to these projects, the Art Club made and sold silver posted earrings designed with bent wires. They also made and sold candles shaped like the 'Mighty Bulldog.'' The projects aided in the raising of money to purchase new equipment needed in the art rooms.

Homecoming set by Booster Club

Booster Club's major concern was preparation for the Homecoming activities. The week of Homecoming, the club sponsored the traditional dress-up days. This year the class competitions consisted of the three-legged race, tricycle race, sack race, relay race, and the tug-of-war. The seniors gained the most points in the competition and won the spirit trophy. Booster Club also helped in decorating for the Homecoming Parade and the halftlime of the game.

The Sophomore Class won the best float award. The Booster Club along with Mr. George Tachtiris' art classes attempted to get the town involved in sectional activities by displaying Bulldog banners in store windows around the square.

Much yelling and enthusiasm was expressed when the "Dynamite Seniors" won the spirit stick, provided by the Booster Club, by yelling the loudest at spirit week competition. Sam Vagenas announced the freshman class as winner of the spirit hall award and seniors as winners of the spirit they spi

Cheerleaders show dedication

Cheerleading at basketball games isn't always fun and games. It requires a certain degree of dedication and hard work at practice. Cheerleaders may practice one to three times a week depending on the event they are preparing for. They also participate in outside activities, including cheerleading camps, local, and national contests. The camps are attended during the summer, and they are conducted by one of the national cheerleading companies such as the NCA. The National Cheerleading Association. Cheerleaders also participate in fund raising activities during the year. Because money is not provided for their uniforms, they must raise all or part of the money needed. In the past they have held car washes, sold greeting cards, license plates, waste baskets, and Homecoming mums.

Cheerleaders are involved in judging during the cheerleading try-outs at other schools. Occasionally, they are requested by a cheerleading sponsor to helo in choosing the new cheerleaders.

Cheerleaders are also expected to be school leaders. They have a constitution that they must abide by and specific rules they must follow. Cheerleading is demanding at times, but most cheerleaders wouldn't miss it for the world.

During the summer, the junior varsity and the freshmen squads attended cheerleading camps. At these camps, experts gave the girls helpful hints for their own improvements. Athletes answer when duty calls

Soon after school began, Letterman and GVC Clubs sold keyrings. These rings, either gymshoes or thongs, came in a large variety of colors. Although they sold well, the fad was soon over. The clubs then decided to sell M & M's. Other clubs have sold M & M's in the past and the students appetite for the M & M's makes profits soar.

Some of the Lettermen made their singing debut this year in the "Classics 80." Talent Show The performance added to the evening's entertainment but none of the performances ment a grammy award this year.

The GVC sponsored a banquet to honor the twelfth grade members of the Letterman and GVC Clubs who had accumulated the greatest number of points. Furthermore, the GVC also assisted at many of the year s sports events, doing everything from selling programs at football games to keeping score at swim meets.

Throughout the year, the Lettermen and GVC kept active in many school activities as well as sports. Their services didn't go unrecognized

Student aides lend a hand

Through the year, many students offer volunteer help to various members of the faculty

The Guidance Office Aides are a great help to the counselors. They're always willing to scurry around the building in search of students. They save both time and energy for members of the staff.

Attendance Office Aides are always ready to offer their services to Mrs. Doris Green and Mrs. Jean Zea. They keep busy writing tardy slips, passports, and passes. They give Mrs. Zea and Mrs. Green extra time for more important jobs.

The students who volunteer to help out in the A-V room are life savers to some teachers who find themselves "klutzy" with the audio-visual equipment. They only need to summon an A-V aide and assistance will be on the way. The aides also bring the equipment to the teachers so they won't have to bother with transporting it themselves. The A-V aides help with the care of the equipment.

Library aides offer the librarians much assistance. They help with getting magazines and books for students. They also check out books and collect fines.

Mr. Shrader's helpers, known to the student body as "Shrader Aides," assist the vice-principals by running errands and summoning students from classes.

They help keep Mr. Shrader in the office where he's needed to see students.

All the students aides perform a service to faculty, staff members, and students. They're a great help in keeping the office and school running smoothly.

ATHLETICS

Each team sets forth to do its best.
An all out effort, the crowd will get.
Win or lose, the coach expects
His squad to perform with togetherness.
Whether a pitch or a pass,
A slam or a splash,
As a team we will fight.
Together we'll make it right.
As the season progresses,
And the team plays as one

Volleyball team spikes way to sectionals

If there was one word that would describe this year's volleyball team, it would be improvement. The Buildogs went for 4-15 in 1978 to a record of 7-8 in 1979. The girls finished with a conference record of 3-3, finishing behind Highland and Munster

The volleyball season ended after the first round of sectionals. The Bulldogs lost their first match to Andrean, but not without a fight. They won the first game 17-15, only to lose the next two, 12-15 and 13-15.

The Bulldogs placed two girls in the all-conference team. Senior Kathy Haverstock and Junior Marion Kacmar. With the loss of only two players, Senior Kathy Haverstock and Lori Coffman, coach Carla Hawkins expects the lady 'Dogs to be strong again next year.

Phil became the second CPHS swimmer to win an individual event at state, following in his brother Ken's footsteps. In his four years of competition in the 100 butterfly, Phil has won two sectional titles; was runnerup twice; and placed fourth, second, and first at state. Phil also swam the butterfly leg as a member of the state champion 200 medley relay team as a junior.

The girl's tennis team concluded its fourth season under Coach Don Gray with a 6-5 dual meet record. The girls also racked up fourth place finish in the Lake Suburban Conference with a 3-3 mark

In the post season conference meet, the team was shut out from the finals by perennial powerhouses Highland and Munster.

In the post season sectionals, Junior singles player Holly Stevenson and the Senior doubles team of Beth Middleton and Kelly Donley advanced through the first round with easy victories. In the quarter-final round, both qualifiers were defeated with each match going three sets.

The junior varsity team ended its spring season with a 5-2-1 mark, also under Coach Gray.

Boys' tennis team racks up 7-2 season mark

The Crown Point boys itennis team ended its strike-shortened season with a very respectable 7-2 mark under third year Coach Tom May. The Bulldogs also finished a strong third in the Lake Suburban Conference race with a 4-2 mark behind. Munster and Highland, who handed the Bulldogs their only regular season losses.

In the conference meet the Bulldogs came up with three runners-up positions in Jim Kiefer, first singles; Doug Luers second singles; and John McMichael and Rick Schach, first doubles.

In the pre-sectional match, the team unfortunately drew host Highland. Several matches went three sets, but the Bulldogs were eliminated 5-0

The Crown Point boy's varsity basketball team finished its 1979-80 campaign with a 13-9 overall record. The Bulldogs also captured the Lake Suburban Conference Championship with a 5-1 record under second year Head Coach Jerry Kino.

The Bulldogs staged a seesaw season, highlighted by a stunning upset of 5th ranked Valpo 75-57.

In the Calumet sectionals, the team earned a berth in the semifinals by knocking off Lake Station 66-61 behind 18 points apiece by Seniors Mike Kalember and Don Plesac. Next, the 'Dogs tangled with Lake Central, the squad's nemesis of last year's sectionals. Once again the Indians were victorious, defeating the Bulldogs 60-53, despite Plesac's 23 points, which placed him on the all-sectional team.

Senior guards Dan Plesac and John Wilcox finished 2nd and 3rd respectively in the LSC scoring race, averaging over 15 points per game, while being named to the all-conference team.

JV finish 13-7; Frosh combine for 25-7 mark

The junior varsity basketball team concluded its season with a 13-7 mark under Coach Rick Swinra. Without any standout players, the squad relied on "team ball" and a "never-say-die" attitude that enabled them to stage several second-hall comeback victories, highlighted by the erasure of a 16 point deficit to Munster for a one point victory. Leading scorers were Ed Schmal, Shawn Lane, Ron Rospond, and Eric Juratic.

The freshman team, under Coach Chuck Smoljan, ended its season with 13-4 and 12-3 records respectively for the "A" and "B" teams. The team had to perform without the services of Greg Handley, Eric Juratic, and Jay Mayden, who were promoted to the JV team.

Team advances

to semi-state

Crown Point glided to its third straight sectional title, and before the season was over it had reached semi-state. Crown Point went into sectional play with an 11-14 record. The 'Dogs defeated Kouts in the first round, 16-0. They then went on to knock out Lake Central 1-0 in 14 innings. In the championship game Crown Point beat Lowell 9-7. Crown Point then went on to regionals and with a solid team effort, the Bulldogs got by a fine Bishop Noll team in a rain-delayed contest. It was then on to South Bend and semi-state where they faced Dekalb. The Bulldogs didn't have quite enough, and fell to Dekalb 2-1.

If there was one player to take the spotlight for Crown Point, it would be Dan Plesac. He not only threw back to back no-hitters this year, but he finished 2-9 in post-season play with a 1.12 earned run average.

Our hats go off to the entire Bulldog team. They did a fine job this year.

ACADEMICS

Though we've had our differences,
And could not always see eye to eye,
Negotiations settled basic conflicts,
And brought us back together to our tasks.
As educators we try to bring across
Our knowledge to students so they may gain,
So they may learn and explore together
And apply their new skills with each other.
We work for the benefit of the next generation
That they as one will search for answers
And help them conclude that . . .
WE ARE BETTER TOGETHER.

Administration goes pro-active

One of the big changes the administration made this year involved the lunch time schedule. Due to the problems of last year, including discipline and loitering in the parking lots, the decision to shorten lunch hours was made. The reasoning behind this decision was if there's no time for trouble, there won't be any trouble.

Another one of the unpopular, but necessary changes made this year, was the driving policy. Last year there were far more stickers than parking spaces, causing students to park off campus, sometimes illegally. This year only seniors were allowed to drive. The school issued 220 stickers. About 180-200 seniors drive everyday. With 230 parking spaces available, there are no more parking problems.

The week after the scheduled start of school, the high school grounds remained empty. Athletes had trouble getting together. Clubs did not meet. Students didn't learn. Teachers didn't teach. A teachers' strike which was threatened over the summer had become a reality. Points of discordance included teacher evaluations, sick leave, salaries, fringe benefits, severance pay, family illness leave, and class sizes. About two weeks after the strike began, negotiations ended and teachers came back to work with only three days of classes needed to be made up by the students and teachers.

A third assistant principal, Mr. Jay Jones, was added to the administrative staff. The decision for this addition was the fact that Crown Point High had been asking for one for five years and to ease the heavy work load of Mr. Paul Georgas and the three other assistant principals. Mr. Jones assisted Mr. Ken Brist with student supervision and discipline.

- Mr. Paul Georgas, principal, (top, Indiana University, M.S.) coordinated all activities at Crown Point High, a task involving much work.

Central office will relocate

The Crown Point school system welcomed Dr. Phillip McDaniel as its new superintendent. Dr. McDaniel arrived last July to replace Mr. Ray Rogers.

Dr. McDaniel received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Indiana State University, and his doctorate from Indiana University.

After a study of several alternatives, the School Board decided to renovate Timothy Ball School on North Street to replace the existing Board of Education Building as the Central Office for the school sys-

Guidance adopts grade system

The guidance department put a new system into use this year. Instead of students seeing counselors on an alphabetical basis, guidance switched to seeing students by grade. Mr. Russ Keller helped introduce freshmen to the high school. Mr. Marty Kolbus aided sophomores. Mrs. Jean Clune, the new counselor who replaced Mr. Carl Moisoff early in the year, advised juniors. Mr. Thomas Stuart guided seniors through their final year and discussed each individual's future plans. Mr. Richard Rucinski continued as head of the guidance department and coordinated arena scheduling, along with other activities, in cooperation with the administration.

Student interest in library up

"Odd or even?" became a familiar question for afternoon study hall goers. Due to the increase of student interest in the library, Mrs. Mary Dixon adopted this policy in order to adjust attendance to the library's accommodations. Credited with this increase in student attendance at the library were a new mature young adult paperback section, the increase of newspapers available, and the jigsaw puzzles. Plants decorating the library gave it a more informal look.

The audio-visual department joined a new film cooperative which made more films available for less money. A-V also received new videotage recorders.

Secretaries do countless jobs

The "Gal Friday" or "Jack-of-all-trades" are descriptive names for the school's secretaries. Their jobs ranged from assisting visitors or students to typing endless letters, lists, and forms.

Whether the secretaries were found in the front office, attendance office, or spread around the school aiding various departments, study hall, library or audio-visual, their jobs were necessary in order to keep the school running smoothy.

In appreciation for all the work done by the secretaries, flower pieces were given to them in celebration of National Secretaries Week during April.

Lunch costs up with inflation

Inflation hit the cafeteria again with the price of a lunch rising to 55c. The cafeterria was faced with the decision between increasing the price or reducing the amount of food given. The choice was made in consideration of how the students would react.

New lunch schedules played havor with the cateteria's time factor. Last year the break between rushes of students was longer, giving the personnel times to prepare for the next lunch hour. This year the shortened lunch periods kept lines from diminishing quickly which also limited prep time for the cateteria. Also due to the new schedules was an increase in the number of students buying lunch.

New in the cafeteria was the cash registers which counted lunches and kept track of the cash flow.

Students cover diverse topics

During the second semester, precalculus students worked on individual projects. This assignment was to create a picture out of various mathematical equations and theorems such as linear equations, the Pythagorean Theorem, and conic equations including circles, ellipses, parabolas, and hyperbolas.

in algebra, freshmen struggled to learn and accept what was once considered new math. Gone was the simple applications of the multiplication tables. Now the tables were applied to widely different topics such as polynomials, including the FOIL method or "George" as most students preferred to call it.

Geometry students were caught up in the complexity of proofs. They were introduced to strange words like axioms and postulates and worked with various shapes such as triangles and cylinders.

For those students with mathematical talents, CPHS also offered courses in advanced algebra and calculus.

SOCIAL STUDIES

Students become farmers of 1885

Early in the school year, some United States history students participated in a farming game. It was based on the actual environmental conditions that existed in the years of 1885, 1886, and 1887. Students were given $1500 and 160 acres which was what any probable farmer of that time might start out with. The object of the game was to grow crops and raise livestock and make a profit. The final profils ranged from $6000 to 5-500.

Social studies included government classes' poll of students on the good and bad points of President Carter, concluding in uncertain results. Students also were asked to choose five presidents they considered outstanding. Among the favorites were Abraham Lincoln, George Washington, and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Besides points of special interest, social studies classes participated in various routine classwork such as oral reports on current events in government classes. Sociology classes studied religions, including denominations, origins, and beliefs. Psychology classes analyzed dreams with Freud's and Jung's interpretations. World history students explored eras from the Dark Ages up to the present.

Physics explores space colonies

Physics classes studied space colonies for about four weeks of the school year. Discussions and movies were based on conditions and possibilities brought up in the book. The High Frontier, by Gerard K. O'Neill. Students witnessed the effects of zero-gravity through movies of Skylab, discussed the probability of cheap solar energy, and figured dimensions of the space colonies.

Regular biology students became familiar with words like order, genus, and species used in classifying the animals they studied. Some of these animals ranged from the microscopic paramecium to the more recognizable clam.

Chemistry students had their first experience with labs which sometimes consumed more time than expected and were hectic if not chaotic. Students were also introduced to atoms which existed with properties according to the confusing quantum theory.

The advanced biology class began the year by receiving its semester project. The talking book, as the project was named, dealt with any subject the student was interested in and was patterned after filmstrips. Through the rest of the year, the advanced biology class progressed from one subject to the next; from cells to mitosis and kidneys to sharks.

Advanced chemistry delved deeper into the realm of science and covered topics such as energy, chemical reactions, and kinetic theories.

ENGLISH

Courses are vital to graduate

The English department offers a variety of courses to enrich a student's background in language. Many students go beyond the required three years and enroll in additional classes.

Freshmen start out with the basics. They study grammar through individual packets and are introduced to literature through their insights text. They study in depth the Greek epic. The Odyssey. Freshmen also pursued units in paraaraph writing.

Sophomores expand their knowledge of grammar becoming familiar with infinitives, gerunds, and participles. In literature, they read stories by modern writers and also become acquainted with the writings of Shakespeare. Sophomores also cover a speech unit. For about a third of the year many students enter classes with a nervous but excited feeling.

In American literature, juniors read stories by William Faulkner, John Steinbeck, and Edgar Allen Poe. They also explored The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn by Mark Twain. English literature students concentrated on selections from Beowulf to T. S. Eliot. World literature students began with Plato and continued through modern existentialist writers like Camus.

Classes get business background

Future businessmen can receive background at CPHS that will aid in preparing them for either grueling college courses or an immediate advancement into the business world.

A popular freshman class is general business where students explore a little bit of everything having to do with business. Students become familiar with the vocabulary of business, the basics of insurance, and at one point in the year students do secretarial work for a fictitious company

Sophomores fill typing classes. Students are introduced to the keys and begin exercises to develop coordination.

Later, speed is encouraged. Consistency in rhythm is taught by typing to music. Typing 3 and 4 goes into greater depth with students increasing speed, writing business letters, and using other business machines like a Xerox.

Some business classes are for students who are headed for business careers. Business law and business management, open to seniors only, acquaint students with the complexities of laws concerning advertising and teach organization in management. Business machines, clerical records, and secretarial procedures provide students with knowledge of office systems.

Tri-level built by students

In its third year, building trades built a tri-level house on South Ridge Street. This house included a fireplace, attached garage, and a bay window. Each of the twenty-eight students involved contrib-uted greatly to the construction of this beautiful house, under the direction of Mr. Ben Stephan. Other houses built in the last two years are located on Route 8 and Franciscan Drive.

Welding classes studied a technique called brazing. Brazing is a type of welding in which intensely heated metal is united by applying a high melting solder. Students who took welding were required to learn twenty-four basic welds involving flat, vertical, and horizontal positions.

Technical drawing classes did projects on orthographic projection and dimensioning or size description. In advanced technical drawing, furniture design and careers involving drafting were discussed.

Students use more than books

Foreign language classes are not just involved with reading out of the textbook. There are dialogs to be read and vocabulary to be memorized. These help the students to speak the language better.

Students frequently see films about the history and the customs of the country of the language they are studying. Students also put on skits about the people who live in these countries. French classes celebrated a religious holiday, February 2, called La Fête de la Chandeleur. In honor of this feast, students made crêpes in class. Those who successfully flipped a crêpe were supposedly awarded good luck.

German students took a field trip to the Chicago Art Institute to see paintings by German artists. After seeing the paintings, the students enjoyed a German meal at the Berghoff Restaurant.

In advanced foods, decorating cakes and making exotic meals from foreign lands kent students busy.

People in housing class picked out a plan for their "Dream House" and proceeded to decorate its interior.

Sewing on sleeves and collars to shirts were just some of the things done in beginning sewing. Advanced sewing students put linings in coats and lapels on blazers.

Learning about marriage, how to manage money, and how to prepare for a family were just some topics that were studied in family living. In singles living, students learned how to make fast and inexpensive meals in a microwaye oven.

ART

Projects bring Variety in Art

Art has always been noted for the different things the students make. Stagecraft members worked on several play settings including the "Heaven Can Wait" set. Also, they learned how to operate the lightling and sound equipment in the auditorium.

In Art I and II pointillism was put into creative use. Pointillism is the concept of making pictures out of small dots. The best pictures were hung in the showcase by the office so the whole school could see this interesting art. Learning macrame, weaving, and decoupage were challenging tasks for students enrolled in crafts.

After this course, though, anyone could agree that these students mastered these skills.

Students who took jewelry class found that the making of rings, brooches, necklaces, and earrings was very interesting.

Sculpture students learned a technique of chiselling a figure out of a block of solid plaster. This is called subtractive sculpture.

MUSIC

Courses require much practice

Students who are musically attuned enroll in music classes. Students who participate in orchestra, symphony, and concert band have spent many years practicing their instruments. Concert band is made up of incoming freshmen and any other band members who have not tried-out for symphony band. Students who are accepted into symphony band have practiced long and hard to master the skill of playing music. Orchestra combines woodwinds and string instruments into a combination that is unbeatable.

Choir offers three main courses for interested students. These courses are boys, girls, and a cappella choirs. A cappella is entered by audition only. Students from boys and girls choir practice all year with the goal of being accepted for a cap-

Health teaches students about their bodies and the different things that can interrupt its functioning. The five major systems of the body are discussed and the 206 bones of the skeletal system memorized. Along with the study of the systems, discussions on mental illness and drugs were held. Students also viewed several films on these subjects.

Students enjoyed the first-aid section in health. Each student practiced the various ways to carry a victim and to wrap an injured limb. After these practices were over, students had to take a test to show their teachers that they had mastered the material covered. If students passed, they received first aid cards.

Birth defects and sex education were also discussed and a movie showing the birth of a baby was seen.

PHY/ICAL EDUCATION

Classes stress physical fitness

Physical fitness is the key of physical education class. Each class starts out with ten minutes of calisthenics. These exercises include sit-ups, push-ups, toetouchers, and jumping jacks. Also, five minutes of running in the gym is required of each student.

For the remainder of the period, each class starts different activities. These activities include a table-tennis tournament, practicing such things as swivel hips and front drops on the trampoline. and swimming laps in the pool. Basketball and baseball are played and tests are given on the rules of these two games. Other activities include dancing, gymnastics, juggling, and track.

ALBUM

Each day begins as 2000 students gather.
Each student possesses his or her own schedule.
From 8 a.m. to the final bell,
We all go about our separate ways.
Yet as individuals we are lacking.
Only through each other can we progress.
Individual goals can only be obtained,
If they are pursued in conjunction with others.
As one fourth of us spend our last year,
We acknowledge each other's support
And together we concede that . . .
WE ARE BETTER TOGETHER.

Seniors prepare for final year

When school started in September, the long awaited title of "Seniors" finally belonged to the class of '80. After four years they were now acquainted with teachers, classes, school activities and traditions.

As the weeks passed many seniors tred to make good use of their final year at Crown Point High School. Some showed an abundance of enthusiasm in classes, activities, clubs, and organizations.

With the beginning of the second semester, Seniors faced another eighten weeks of daily classes and assignments. As the days passed, they turned their thoughts to graduation and what lay beyond. As the countdown to graduation began, seniors' thoughts turned more to summer jobs, recreation, or to entering college or the job market.

Tina Allee (above) has her height and head measurement taken for the ordering of her cap and gown for May commencement.

Seniors prepare for graduation

Seniors prepared for graduation in January as well as in May. The first step for many seniors was to have their senior pictures taken. The pictures were taken during the summer and also at the beginning of the school year

The second step was to order graduation announcements. Seniors had the choice of many different colors and styles. Class keys and memory albums could also be ordered

The third step was the measurements of the cap and gowns. Seniors were called down to the library in alphabetical order to be measured.

The next step was missing the first three morning classes to practice for the graduation ceremony. The practice included lining up, marching, and receiving a diploma.

On the last day of school, seniors celebrated by having the traditional senior parade. Many of the cars carried the class motto which was "Party Hearty, Crazy Eighty.

The final step was the actual graduation ceremony. The seniors received their diplomas and started a new way of life in a new decade

Seniors plan for future careers

The class of '80 is made up of many individuals, each with his or her own set of goals and ambitions. In today's society many career opportunities are available to high school graduates. Among the choices are finding a job or attending college

For those students who planned to attend college, the preparation started during junior year. To be accepted at a college, the students had to take a test of their math and English abilities known as the SAT. The scores were used on the student's college application to gain admission.

High school also helped those not planning to attend college to develop skills needed in many jobs and in day to day life. Industrial Arts helped many prepare for jobs as mechanics, carpenters. machinists, welders, electricians, and other areas of industry.

The Business Department helped those interested in secretarial jobs and other business procedures.

The Home Economics Department prepared many with knowledge of cooking. sewing, family planning, budgeting, child care, and personal relationship.

Seniors receive special awards

Senior Awards Day brought recognition to some outstanding seniors for their feats and abilities during the school year. Many community groups presented their awards to these outstanding students.

The Dave Gergely foundation raised $500 from a dance marathon. This scholarship was given to Dan Doty for his athletic abilities. A Student Council Award of $200 was given to Bill Feder. Laura Smith received a $250 vocational scholarship from the Crown Point Women's Club. Mary Schutz was granted a $500 scholarship for the first year in college and $200 each year thereafter from the Kiwanis Scholars.

A National Merit Scholarship was awarded to Cathy Collins and Dan Dillon, DAR Citizen Award, Dave Gervais; Most Valuable Senior Award in band, jazz and symphony, Tom Reed: Business, Chris Berg and Debbie Klassen, Home Econmics, Terri Cummins, Sue Richards, and Rob Clark; Oustanding Female Athlete of 1980, Jane McConnell; Outstanding Male Athlete of 1980, Dan Doty; Student Council Award, Sam Vagenas; Women's Club of Cedar Lake, Carrie Pankey; and Classroom Teachers Association Scholarship of $300, Debbie Alspaugh.

Spring fever hit the seniors

Towards the end of school, a contagious disease spread throughout the senior class. The disease known as Senioritis, seems to affect the students concentation. Seniors lose interest in all of their classes and begin failing tests, skipping homework assignments and ditching classes to go to the beach on those warm spring days. While many teachers lectured, they recognized the disease in the students blank expressions and listless attitudes. To some seniors tests and quizzes no longer seemed important. For all seniors, the night of May 23 provided a real cure—Commencement.

Juniors tackle heavy schedules

Junior year is a greater challenge because classes are more difficult and homework more abundant. Classes such as composition and grammar. American literature, pre-calculus, advanced algebra, chemistry and physics all take a considerable amount of time and concentration. In addition to the course load, many juniors are licensed drivers and are getting a steady job for the first time. Many are working at such places as McDonald's, Burger King, Luke's, Zip Foods, or Thrift-T-Mart. Having a job and keeping up with classes is difficult because of the long hours involved. Juniors have to balance work, study, and extracurricular activities with their social life. The junior year offered the class of '81 a new and challenging experience with the game called life.

Tests pave way for future jobs

Juniors faced situations this year which hadn't concerned them in the past. The morning after the big homecoming game some college bound juniors took the PSAT. These tests demanded a clear head for the long morning's work. The verbal tests included analogies, difficult vocabulary, verbal comprehension, and correct usage. In addition to basic skills, the math section dealt with algebra and geometry. The PSAT's prepared the juniors for the SAT given in May. This test was suggested for any students planning to attend college.

At the same time juniors were testing to prepare for the future, they were also going out into the world. Many students needed their jobs more this year to pay for the expenses of cars and to save for college. The junior year was very important to the class of "81" for their future plans.

Concessions net money for prom

Because of a lack of funds in the junior class, the tickets for prom increased from $20 to $25. The concession stand, managed by Mr. Victor Dykiel was the main fund raiser for the prom.

To raise money for the prom, the junior volunteers ran the concession at all home games. The band "Passage" alone cost approximately $1,000.

Since the juniors had only $800 to $900 in funds, the junior class could not even swing the price of the band, not to mention the cost of food, the rental of the hall, and decorations without raising money. Most of the money that paid for prom came from concession and the price of the fickets.

Every soph has a specialty

For the musical, there is Choraleers, Choralaires, Swing Choir or Madrigals For those who like instruments, there is Jazz Band, Pep Band, Marching Band, and Orchestra. Sophomores with a musical flair found they fit right into one or more of these groups.

Those sophomores who think best with a pencil in their hands found their nuche in Exadibur, Inklings or Windfall. Those who felt the very thought of snow sent shivers up their spines, were right at home in Ski Club.

Some people found the hustle and bustle of opening night a real thrill, and they knew the only way to keep that wonderful teeling was to join the Drama Club, and many did. Some sophomores found a way to expand their favortle class by joining Biology, Latin or Health Clubs. Some sophomores found they liked to stand up in front of people and speak their minds. These people found they were naturals for Speach and Debata Club.

Many activities interest sophs

"May I have your attention please? The winner of the 1979 Homecoming Float Contest is . . . drum roll please . . . the Sophomore Class!"

At this point the winners leap to their feet with excitement and yell. "We won, we won!" That was a happy moment for the sophomores during homecoming. The next night was even more exciting for some sophomores because they attended their first semi-formal dance.

Before Christmas another dance, the Turnabout, was the first chance for roles to be reversed, and the girls had a chance to ask the guys. For the first time, the girls knew what it was like to get the jitters, that horrible feeling of possibly getting furned down. For those who did go to the dance, the effor was worth it. The music of both dances really gave the sophomores a chance to dance close and "Get down and boogie."

Opening put off

As the long days of summer vacation daded away, certain students, designated as the class of '83, began preparing for the first day of school. When August 27 finally rolled around, and everyone was madly making last minute preparations for school to commence at 1:00 p.m., freshmen, especially, were shocked to hear that school was cancelled because of a teachers' strike.

To their surprise, but perhaps delight, this strike continued on day after day for a little over two weeks. Finally, after differences between the teachers and the School Board were resolved, freshmen trooped to school on September 12, the first official day of the '79-'80 school year.

Frosh participate in homecoming

Homecoming was a new experience for most freshmen. It was exciting, but some-times traumatic, and just good down-to-earth, plain fun! Many freshmen participated in the parade. The main event for the freshmen, and one they were most proud of, was their float. Their original float featured a scoreboard with their graduating year, 1983, and a pink panther hung over a goal post.

After the cold of the parade, the freshmen were revved up for the excitement of the Homecoming game. The itty-bitty freshmen got loud and rowdy at half-time festivities, cheering their pretty Homecoming princess, Julie Haag.

As the time of Homecoming dance ticked near, freshman girls anxiously waited near the telephone to hear from that special guy. On the other hand, that guy nervously approached the phone—usually several times—wondering if she'd say yes or no. But there were those who never did get the call, or the nerve to make it. These freshmen bravely cheered themselves with the fact that they have three more Homecomings still on the way!

Frosh schedule for first time

Even before freshmen walked through the front doors of CPHS, they had to choose the classes best suited for them. Required courses for freshmen are English I and II, a math course, and P.E. This left freshmen with three electives.

Those who chose to take a foreign language had to get accustomed to the unusual pronunciations of foreign words. Students in earth science studied the functions of nature on our planet. Freshman in general business learned the basics of business practice.

Some freshmen chose to remain in band which they had taken since grade school. Others tried their hands in home economic classes such as Personal Relationships and various shop classes.

When all the decisions and selections of classes were behind them, freshmen plunged into the academic life of CPHS.

We're Better Together

The 1980 yearbook owes its success to the hard work of many people. It wouldn't have been accomplished without the diligent work of our adviser, Miss Eleanore Britton, Another person who assisted the staff was Mr. Derald Ailes. Newsfoto representative. We would also like to thank Root Photographers, for processing film and shooting endless rolls of pictures, and the administration for putting up with our roving reporters. A special thank you is extended to Mr. Georgas for announcing schedules for group pictures. Finally, we would like to thank the yearbook staff and the patrons of the yearbook. Without both these groups, we wouldn't have a book

The 1980 staff has tried to record the year's events accurately. We believe we have produced what everyone expected, and that this book will serve as a record of all the memories of the 1979-1980 year. Our final thanks goes to you, the purchaser of the book, for your contributions in making this year one that was worth the time and effort put into this book. Remember.
